E-journal articles

- E-journal providers do not always allow the direct importing of journal articles into Blackboard, individual licences need to be checked. Please do not upload electronic journal content from databases unless you are sure this is permissible - please check with library staff or alternatively use the Citation Linker tool for journal links.

(Instructions for this tool are in the Blackboard module in the Information for Academic staff folder, or ask your Information Specialist)

Images

Images embedded in the text of a book or journal are included in the licence where applicable. If you wish to use standalone images or photographs in your teaching materials, copyright permission should be obtained separately, this can be costly and time-consuming. It is advisable to use images which are already cleared for re-use, by a Creative Commons or other licence.

Suggested sources are:

- JISC MediaHub - this database has pre-cleared images for re-use, access via the Google Images - use Advanced search and choose “labelled for re-use” from the drop-down menu on the right-hand side
- Flickr - go to Advanced search and tick “Only search within Creative Commons-licensed content” to find re-usable images

Video Recordings and DVDs

If you need to use audio or video material for teaching and learning, copyright law affects you. Aston has an Educational Recording Agency (ERA) licence. The ERA operates a Licensing Scheme for educational use of copyright protected material. This allows the following non-commercial activities:

- Recording from broadcasts made in the UK of the works and performances owned or represented by ERA members. Recordings may be made by or on behalf of an educational establishment.
- Electronic communication of licensed recordings within an educational establishment

For help and advice, please contact Steve Ellis, Head of Media and Learning Technology s.w.ellis@aston.ac.uk

Newspapers

The University pays an annual fee for a Newspaper Licence from the Newspaper Licensing Agency http://www.nla.co.uk/ which allows staff and students to copy (first copy only) on an ad hoc basis from national and regional titles. The licence also allows some copying on a digital basis - for more information please contact Alex Earnshaw in the Marketing Department a.earnshaw@aston.ac.uk

Open University material

The university currently holds a licence to use Open University material. For information about copyright and the Open University please refer to Kim Dance k.dance@aston.ac.uk

Protecting your own Intellectual Property

If, during your work at Aston, you produce material which has a commercial value, you need to seek advice on protecting your intellectual property. Please contact Mr Darian Brookes in the Business Partnership Unit, d.brookes@aston.ac.uk

For further information please contact Caroline Long c.a.long@aston.ac.uk extension 4488
Every effort has been made to ensure that the information in this leaflet is accurate and up to date, but no legal responsibility is accepted for any errors, omissions or misleading statements, please check with the University solicitors if in any doubt.

General information

- The rights of copyright holders are protected in the UK by the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, which came into force in August 1989.
- All copying or scanning on University premises must take place under one of the exceptions to the Act, under a licence, or by permission of the rights holder.
- The length of the copyright period is variable, for example for literary, dramatic, musical or artistic works it is 70 years from the end of the calendar year in which the author dies.
- Even when a book is published abroad we still have to abide by UK law.
- If a work is created by an employee in the course of their employment, the copyright in that work will be owned by the employer, unless there is an agreement to the contrary.
- Students will own copyright in all their work unless there is an agreement to transfer the copyright to the School.
- A work is subject to copyright even if it doesn’t include the copyright symbol. Copyright rights do not need to be registered and come into being when a relevant work is created.
- For more information on the exceptions to the Act relating to Education, please see the Intellectual property Office website http://www.ipo.gov.uk/copy.htm

Photocopying and scanning

Please note: The Copyright Licensing Agency retains the right to investigate institutional servers to ensure that Universities are adhering to the licence. The following guidelines apply to both copying and scanning.

For Personal Use

You can photocopy or scan printed material for private research or for the purposes of review, provided that only a single copy is made. This is often referred to as the ‘fair dealing’ exception. The precise amount you may copy is not defined in legislation (it must not be a substantial part) but the accepted limits are (whichever is greater):

- up to 5% or one chapter of a book
- up to 5% or one article of a journal issue
- up to 5% or one paper of one set of conference proceedings
- up to 5% or one report of a single case from a report of judicial proceedings
- up to 5% of an anthology of short stories or poems or one short story or one poem of not more than 10 pages

For teaching and learning (non-personal use)

Aston University holds the CLA’s basic HE licence which allows photocopying and scanning of material for use in teaching. Detailed User Guidelines are available on the CLA website http://www.cla.co.uk/UUK/basic_he_licence

The licence permits photocopying and scanning of extracts from most books, journals, periodicals, conference proceedings and law reports published in the United Kingdom. A book or journal may be assumed to be published in the UK if the publisher’s details as printed on its title page include a UK location and/or address.

- The University must own a copy of the item, or purchase a copyright cleared copy of the extract to be scanned/copied.
- Inspection copies or a lecturer’s own copy may not be used.
- The most up-to-date edition in stock must be used, unless the extract is not included in that edition.
- Multiple copying is allowed provided that the number of copies made does not exceed the number of students on the course plus one copy for the lecturer.

Material which is not covered by this licence includes:

- maps
- public examination papers
- newspapers (see separate section)
- publications on the ‘Excluded Works’ list http://www.cla.co.uk/licences/excluded_works/excluded_categories_works/
- printed music

Non-UK material

There are now more than 30 countries which allow photocopying and/or scanning under the licence. The list of these is subject to frequent change. Please check with Library staff or see the CLA list of mandating territories for further information: http://www.cla.co.uk/licences/excluded_works/international/

Guidelines for scanning documents for teaching and learning

Please note: the final digitised document must be placed on a secure server which supports authentication, i.e. Blackboard, and must be for a designated course of study, and only available for students enrolled on that module.

How do I stay legal?

- Send all your scanning requests to LIS (via your Information Specialist).
- Please be aware that no scanning is allowed under the licence unless authorised by the Copyright License Co-ordinator – Caroline Long e.c.long@aston.ac.uk
- All scanning must be recorded by LIS - a legally obtained scan will have the correct coversheet attached.
- Once created the scans can usually be transferred from one year to the next, but will still need to be requested and reported each year.
- Please check the copyright pages for guidance and request digitised documents via the online form: http://www1.aston.ac.uk/lis/usinglibrary/copyright/
