Examples might include explaining procedures, regulations or course requirements, showing someone how to operate equipment or providing feedback where tact and diplomacy are required. (b) Written Communication. May frequently receive, understand and convey straightforward information in a clear and accurate manner. Examples may include, taking messages, preparing standard letters, confirming appointments and handling straightforward correspondence including emails. May also occasionally be required to receive, understand and convey written information that needs careful explanation or interpretation to help others understand; taking into account what to communicate and how best to convey the information to others. Examples may include occasionally; writing notes of formal meetings, writing up notes of experiments, writing brochures or advertising material or drafting guides to course modules.
2. TEAM WORK AND MOTIVATION Mainly required to be supportive and encouraging of others in a team; help to build co-operation by setting an example and showing a flexible approach to delivering team results; contribute to building team morale as an active participant in the team. Examples may include offering support to colleagues in a team where members are pulling together or the team is self directed, leadless or has a remote leader or a senior member of a team who is expected to act as a role model to less experienced colleagues.
3. LIAISON AND NETWORKING Generally required to carry out standard day to day liaison with people outside their immediate work team to exchange information for effective working. They will use existing procedures in order to ensure dissemination of information in the right format to the right people at the right time; build relationships and contacts to facilitate future exchange of information. May also be required to participate in groups or networks, outside of their immediate work team, within the institution or externally in order to pass on information promptly; keep people informed to ensure co-ordination of effort and that work is done effectively. An example may include being part of a Health and Safety Committee or forum.
4. SERVICE DELIVERY Mainly required to deal with internal or external contacts who ask for a service or require information; create a positive image of the institution by being responsive and prompt in responding to requests and referring the user to the right person if necessary. Contact is usually initiated by the customer and typically involves routine tasks with set standards or procedures. Examples may include responding to requests for information from employees, students, parents or members of the public.

5. DECISION MAKING PROCESSES
May be required to make independent decisions which have a minor impact, that affect only the role holder or immediate colleagues and can be undone quickly with little implication. Examples may include choosing stock from a preferred suppliers list, deciding when to hold a meeting or buying low cost items within a local budget. May be required to be party to some collaborative decisions; work with others to reach an optimal conclusion which have a minor impact. For example decisions made between the role holder and their manager about routine work matters. May also be required to provide advice or input that will contribute to the decision making of others which have a minor impact, such as giving feedback on the usage of a service or recommending a product to sell/buy.
6. PLANNING AND ORGANISING RESOURCES
Generally required to plan, prioritise and organise their own work or resources to achieve agreed objectives. Examples may include deciding how and when to respond to requests for information, when to order replacement stock or designing and making a piece of equipment or software. In addition, may occasionally be required to plan, prioritise and organise the work or resources of self and others within own area on a daily, weekly or monthly basis; plan and manage small projects, ensuring the effective use of resources; receive information from and provide information to others to complete their planning; monitor progress against the plan.
7. INITIATIVE AND PROBLEM SOLVING
Mainly be required to solve standard day to day problems as they arise either by choosing between a limited number of options which have clear consequences, by following guidelines or referring to what has been done before. The role holder should be able to recognise when a problem should be referred to others. Problems dealt with will usually be the type that recurs on a regular, routine basis. In addition, may also occasionally be required to use their initiative and creativity to resolve problems where the optimal solution may not be immediately apparent but has to be assessed by a process of reasoning, weighing up the pros and cons of different approaches. They will need to identify and assess practical options by breaking the problem down into component parts. The range of solutions will be defined by a set of procedures or guidelines or by training and application of knowledge. Examples might include dealing with attendance problems, following a policy/procedure/guidelines to solve a problem, handling grading, grievances or disciplinary issues.
8. ANALYSIS AND RESEARCH
Mainly be required to analyse routine data or information using predetermined procedures and gathering the information from standard sources; work accurately to complete the task precisely as specified. Examples may include providing statistics using standard techniques (e.g. on spreadsheets), providing data for payroll purposes, carrying out literature and database searches or monitoring resource usage such as expenditure against a budget.
9. SENSORY AND PHYSICAL DEMANDS
Generally required to complete basic tasks that require either a minimum of instruction or light, if any, physical effort, involving the use of simple generally available tools or equipment. Examples might include using standard office or laboratory equipment, light gardening or maintenance tools, basic kitchen equipment or occasionally moving goods/light objects/equipment.
10. WORK ENVIRONMENT
Generally required to work in an environment which is relatively stable and has little impact on the role holder or the way in which work is completed, for example working in an office.

11. PASTORAL CARE AND WELFARE
Mainly be required to show sensitivity to those who may need help or, in extreme cases, are showing signs of obvious distress; initiate appropriate action by involving relevant people. Examples may include being responsible for a number of people, being the first point of contact for welfare issues and dealing with these situations as a normal or routine part of the role.  Occasionally may be required to respond to predictable welfare issues that are covered by documented procedures such as a Personnel policy or student regulations, but the matter can be referred to someone else or advice on how to respond can be obtained. Examples might include responding to requests for special leave, dealing with disciplinary or other performance issues.
12. TEAM DEVELOPMENT
Generally required to advise or guide new starters working in the same role or unit on standard information or procedures. Examples might include showing a new member of staff around, explaining administrative systems and procedures.  Occasionally may be responsible for training or instructing other members of the work team. This also includes coaching members of the team formally or informally and providing internal training sessions.
13. TEACHING AND LEARNING SUPPORT
May be required to introduce students or those new to the area (staff outside of the role holders immediate work team) to standard information or procedures. Examples may include providing simple demonstrations or explanations such as explaining the use of the library, demonstrating how to use simple equipment or outlining the procedure for enrolling on a course/module.
14. KNOWLEDGE AND EXPERIENCE
Generally required to apply working knowledge of theory and practice, sharing this knowledge with others as appropriate; demonstrate continuous specialist development by acquiring relevant skills and competencies. This may be demonstrated by the acquisition of a certificate after a period of practical and theoretical training or experience of the role. Examples might include knowing how to program a computer, management skills, or the ability to interpret rules, procedures and regulations and provide advice to others on how they should be applied.
