Citizenship	Good School and University citizenship is a prerequisite for consideration of applications for promotion. Here, citizenship is defined as making a pro-active contribution to the activities of the School, Department and/or University that fall outside of the expectations of the role; getting involved and taking responsibility, without being asked, for making the things happen that have a contribution to the achievement of Aston First objectives and in support of Aston's values (trust, empowerment, engagement, innovation, learning and scholarship, ambition); demonstrating commitment to working unselfishly and effectively to the benefit of others and the University. Staff must be willing and able to take on leadership positions and this will be a particular expectation for staff applying at Reader or Professorial levels. Staff should demonstrate how they have met the leadership expectations of Aston First: inspiring others and gaining commitment; recognising and rewarding high performance; remaining open to new ideas and seeking to act quickly for positive change; attracting, retaining and developing outstanding staff; being ambitious for themselves, their teams and the University; engaging with staff by listening, observing and communicating; focussing on excellent customer service; being decisive and making balanced judgements; empowering staff to make reasoned decisions without fear of blame; engendering trust through their own actions; being fair in all matters.
